Hot slice of culture: The pizza museum

► Four twentysomethings want to turn one man's obsession into unique pizza shop ► Guinness Book of Records to rank his collection this month

RIKARD LARMA/METRO

► Dwyer, pictured here with some of his vast collection, is working with Hunter, Anderson and Michael Carter to realize their dream of owning a pizza shop that doubles as a museum paying homage to the very pies they'll serve.

What's on the menu?

PHILADELPHIA. The collection ranges from a "Turtles Pizza Drop" arcade game circa 1990 — we've come a long way in electronic gaming — to 1950s vinyl records honoring pizza in song and lyric.

It'll be Anderson's job to continue to rotate the memorabilia inside the eatery once it opens, since space for all 550-plus collectibles won't be available all the time.

"We don't want it to look like Hard Rock Cafe anyway," Anderson said, referring to the way the restaurant chain stuffs its walls from floor to roof.

METRO/BXM

Despite America's obvious love affair with pizza that's been cooking ever since the pizzeria was introduced to us in 1905, there is no official record for the largest single collection of memorabilia related to the tomato-based cuisine.

That is expected to change July 31 when Guinness Book of World Records officials arrive in Philadelphia to take a count of Fishtowner Brian "Brain" Dwyer's collection, ► If approved, the four then will secure the variances to begin renovation of the former floral shop in the 2300 block of Frankford Avenue, Dwyer said.

record," Dwyer said yesterday at a former flower shop on Frankford Avenue he hopes will become the Pizza Brain restaurant and museum by next spring. "I've always loved pizza and then I had this idea. ... I want it to be open to grow exponentially."

Dwyer and three other twentysomethings from the neighborhood have formed the business plan that will make Fishtown home to America's largest pizza memorabilia museum. Chef Joe Hunter, who approached Dwyer after learning of the collection through the grapevine, will be responsible for the food.

"It wouldn't fit into any other area in Philadelphia," said Ryan Anderson, who's in charge of designing the pizza shop and has already begun showing off the vast collection at recent art shows. "We love the Fishtown-Kensington area and it'll be great to add this [attraction and restaurant]."

► Boathouse Row

Turning around the Rivage

PHILADELPHIA. The city's Redevelopment Authority issued a request this week for proposals to develop the Ri-vage Property along Kelly Drive that East Falls residents have long hoped would become a welcoming bookend to Boathouse Row.

Holding out such hope is Gina Snyder, director of the East Falls Development Corp. In the late 1990s, the City bought the 1.7-acre property between Ridge Formerly the Rivage Catering hall, the RDA accepted bids twice in 2004. A "hugely ambitious" residential/retail proposal was selected but never came to fruition. In 2009, a scaled-back plan from another developer fell victim to the economy.

Arson team gone, but Camden fires continue to rage on ► Fifth abandoned building since June 9 burned yesterday morning ► Local ATF, county investigators search for links as 20-member national team since left

Camden firefighters fought yet another abandoned-building fire yesterday morning, again fueling fears of a serial arsonist. The latest blaze was reported at the vacant Clement Coverall Co. plant at Sixth Street and Carl Miller Boulevard.

"Obviously, there's no certainty that this fire is related to the others, but that is something that's being looked at," said Jason Laughlin, spokesman for the Camden County Prosecutor's Office.

The two-alarm fire is the fifth since a 12-alarm blaze engulfed an abandoned tire factory, razing 23 buildings and displacing at least 16 families in the Parkside neighborhood on June 9.

After the third fire struck a former chemical-plant factory 10 days later, a 20-person federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives response team investigated whether it was arson. They found it was, but have since left Camden without linking the incident to others.

"They didn't go to the other fire scenes because, for the most part, there really wouldn't be much to find there at this point. For public-safety reasons, the remains of those buildings were knocked down," Laughlin said. "There would be very little to glean from those scenes because of the demolitions."

The local ATF is investigating the latest fire, which occurred at a former paint- and varnish-manufacturing site undergoing DEP "remediation" for environmental concerns.

City hosts cleanup at Mount Moriah

► City officials and volunteers will converge on PA's largest cemetery July 16 ► Court still weighing briefs

City officials are organizing a volunteer cleanup of a Southwest Philadelphia cemetery while a court decides the fate of the grounds after years of neglect.

Mount Moriah Cemetery, the largest graveyard in Pennsylvania, houses the remains of about 88,000 people, but has been in disrepair for several years due to the lack of an active operator. Last month, the city went to Municipal Court to ask a judge to declare the cemetery a public nuisance and hold the widow of the last surviving member of the governing body responsible.

In the meantime, the city is teaming up with Friends of Mt. Moriah, Greater Philadelphia Cares and other groups to clean up the site July 16. It is also working with officials in Yeadon Borough, which the cemetery crosses into, to find a receiver to maintain and operate the 380-acre site.

The city has also obtained an order to seize the cemetery's records and has contracted an outside organization to catalog those records.

Twitter funding puts value at $7B

Following successful IPOs of other tech firms, social networking site is raising the stakes of its valuation

Twitter Inc., the microblogging site that lets users post 140-character messages, is raising funding that values the startup at about $7 billion, said a person with knowledge of the matter.

Twitter's worth has almost doubled since December, when it received a $200 million investment led by Kleiner Perkins Caufield & Byers that valued the company at $3.7 billion. The startup was pegged at about $1 billion in 2009, a person familiar with the matter said at the time. SharesPost Inc., an exchange for shares of closely held companies, has assessed Twitter's current worth at $6.8 billion.

Twitter is continuing to raise funds from private investors, rather than joining other social-media companies in filing for an initial public offering. LinkedIn Corp., a professional-networking site, went public in May. Since then, Groupon Inc., the biggest daily-deal site, and Zynga Inc., the top developer of Facebook games, have both filed for IPOs.

► Smile — it could increase your life, as it does for our furry cousins.

Study: Happy apes are longer-living

► Scientists say the happiest orangutans in zoos can swing years longer ► Could improve our own lifespans

Just like humans, happier orangutans are more likely to live longer, new research says.

These findings could help illustrate how happiness has evolved in primates and human beings, Dr. Alexander Weiss, the lead author of the study, told Metro.

"Certain traits among orangutans that are linked to happiness can be explained by genetic differences, which is also true for humans and even chimpanzees," he said.

Weiss and his research team at the University of Edinburgh and the Univer-

7 yrs

Out of almost 200 orangutans studied, researchers found that those who scored as "happier" by their keepers were more likely to be alive up to seven years later.

sity of Arizona asked zookeepers who worked closely with captive orangutans to take part in the study. The carers answered questions about the animals, their personalities and attitude.

The questionnaire posed four main questions to the animal carers, including how much time each orangutan spent "happy, contented and enjoying itself." The carers were also asked how happy they would be if they were the animal in question.

"The results of our study do suggest that a zookeeper's impression of happiness is probably a good indicator of an individual orangutan's health and welfare," Weiss said.

'GENES PLAY A ROLE'

Dr. Alexander Weiss from the University of Edinburgh:

Why check up on orangutans' moods and habits?

We learn from studying orangutans that it may be possible to learn about the evolution of happiness. This could lead to a better understanding of what makes ... humans happy. It may also benefit orangutans if the zoos and other facilities in which they are housed pay attention. They might indicate problems that are not detected in normal health screens.

What made certain orangutans happier than others?

We are working on a study that suggests genes play some role. We also know that orangutans that are higher in the personality dimensions of extraversion and agreeableness and lower in the personality trait of neuroticism are seen as happier. However, we know little else about what may play a role in their happiness. ● METRO

But author Christopher Anderson of the New York Times best-selling book "William and Kate: A Royal Love Story" says that the royal pair aren't too excited about the evening, even though the star-studded event will include "a very nice celebrity list," per the organizers.

"While everyone in Hollywood has been jockeying for an invitation to the 'Brits to Watch' BAFTA dinner at the legendary Belasco Theater being hosted by the royal couple, neither William nor Kate seem very interested in cozying up to stars," Anderson dishes to

Richards' slim secrets

Denise Richards is 40 years old, which is surprising because she acts 20 years younger. Her secret to staying slim: "I am very active," she tells Self.com. "I found what works for my body — everyone's body is different, and I think it's best to find what works for you. For me it's Pilates and dance. My diet is 80 percent vegetarian and I eat all day long. I have lots of little meals; it's best for me. My abs get the best workout with my Pilates reformer — I had two

C-sections and it was the only thing I found that got my tummy flat."

Hillary Scott engaged

Hillary Scott, the lead singer of country band Lady Antebellum, is off the market. She got engaged to drummer Chris Tyrell this past weekend, according to People magazine.

Spader joins 'The Office'

Steve Carell's former position has been filled: NBC announced on Wednesday that James Spader is now on Dunder Mifflin's payroll. "'The Office' has no tools for dealing with this guy. We're thrilled he's joining our cast," exec producer Paul Lieberstein said in a statement. Cue Dwight!

Beyond the Fourth of July

1: Even when he's plastic, he still gets the girls: Hong Kong model Jessica C. posed alongside a new Robert Pattinson wax figure at Madame Tussauds in Hong Kong on Tuesday.

2: Prince rocked the Brits at the Hop Farm Festival at The Hop Farm on Sunday in Paddock Wood, England.

3: Anne Hathaway arrived for the Valentino Haute Couture Fall 2011 show as part of Paris Fashion Week on Wednesday in Paris, France. Is that a wrist tattoo I spy, Anne?

4: Janet Jackson performed at The Grand Canal Theatre on Tuesday in Dublin, Ireland, as part of her "Number Ones: Up Close and Personal" tour.

5: Nicole Kidman and her daughter Faith were snapped at the Sydney International Airport on Wednesday in Sydney, Australia.

6: Actress Katie Holmes was spotted outside of her hotel on Tuesday in Paris, France. She's in town for Paris Fashion Week.

7: Sure, it's a bit dated at this point, but this lovely photo of Kate Moss and Kills guitarist Jamie Hince, taken outside of the church where they got married on July 1 in Southrop, England, remains a holiday weekend highlight.

While his ukulele gently weeps

► Jake Shimabukuro is grateful for the 8 million people who have watched his YouTube videos
 ► If you are one of them, you are the reason he is able to tour

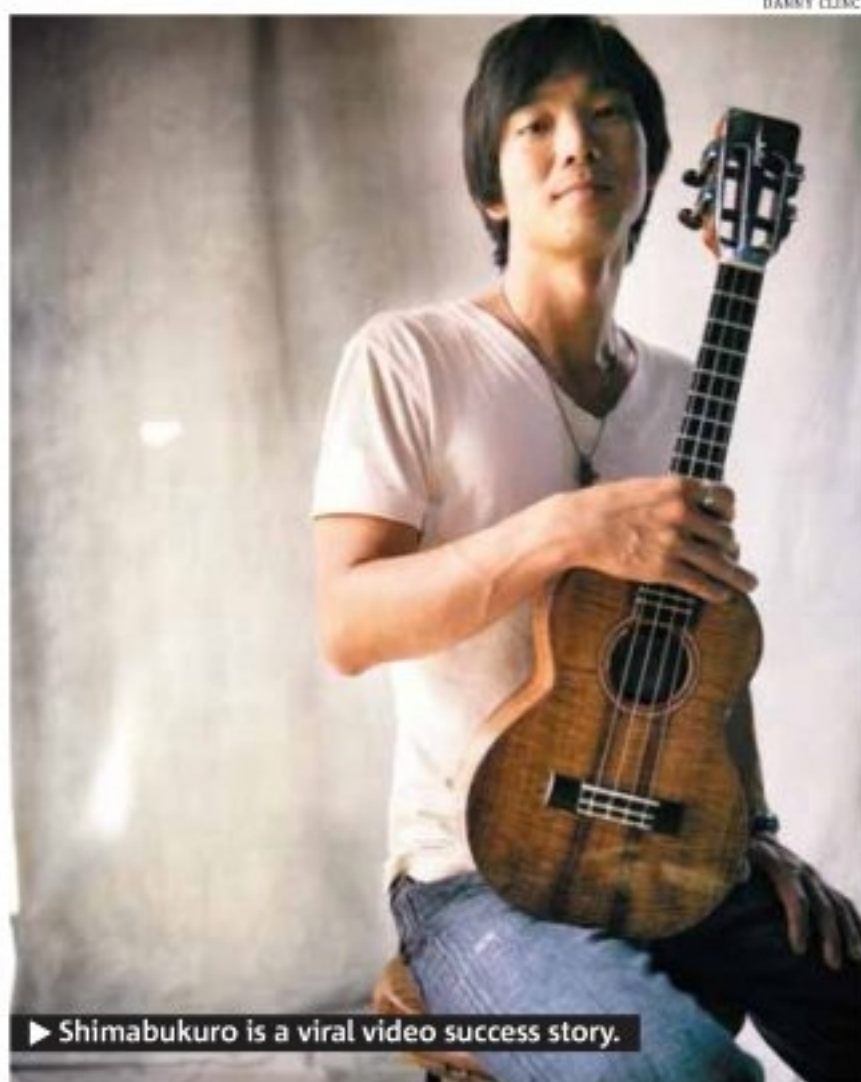

Jake Shimabukuro is in the airport in his homeland of Hawaii, waiting to begin a tour that will take him across the U.S. and then to Japan and Korea. He says the ukulele he carries with him often sparks interesting conversations.

"Sometimes I'll be walking around the airport, and somebody will say, 'What's in the case?' and I'll say it's a ukulele," he says. "And that person will go, 'Oh, have you seen that guy on YouTube in Central Park?' and I'll say, 'Oh yeah.'"

He usually doesn't tell the person that he has not only seen the video, but that he actually is "that guy on YouTube in Central Park." Six years and 8 million views later, Shimabukuro wears his hair longer, and doesn't wear the glasses he dons while playing a virtuoso version of The Beatles' "While My Guitar Gently Weeps."

"It's amazing," says Shimabukuro, who has toured with Jimmy Buffet, Bette Midler, Cyndi Lauper and Ziggy Marley. "That short video has really made a touring career for myself. It's just been the greatest promotional pseu-

Shimabukuro's voice is laid-back and betrays the complexity and ferocity with which he delivers songs like "Bohemian Rhapsody" and nine exquisite originals on his new album, "Peace, Love, Ukulele."

Is Shimabukuro concerned that more people picking up his instrument of choice will turn it into yesterday's fad? Not at all.

"To be honest, when I started playing the ukulele, I really did not think I would be making a living as a ukulele player," he says.

"Up until maybe six years ago, there was no such thing as a touring solo ukulele player. This is all new, completely unexpected, and I'm enjoying it. I mean, I pinch myself every morning — but if one day it all stops, I will die a happy man."

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Diverse lineup for QFest

► The 17th annual LGBTQ film festival has a little something for everyone ► The only criteria for the films? ► That they're enjoyable

At first glance, not much seems to unite the more than 100 films on the bill for the 17th annual QFest. There are extraterrestrial lesbians ("Codependent Lesbian Space Alien Seeks Same"), Sundance darlings ("Circumstance"), rom-coms ("eCupid"), faux-reality shows (the locally produced "Go Go Crazy") and documentaries examining same-sex marriage ("Married in Spandex," also a Philly entry).

So what gets to the screen at the East Coast's largest LGBTQ film festival? It's pretty simple, actually. "We don't have a political approach or a PC attitude. So it comes down to, 'Did we enjoy the film?'" says artistic director Ray Murray.

This year, Murray and his team scouted stateside and international festivals before returning to Philly with 43 feature films, seven world premieres and two U.S. premieres. Although many of the picks will not have theatrical releases, there are more independent LGBTQ-minded films than ever — which is beginning to make Murray's job as curator more difficult. "There's been a resurgence in gay and lesbian films," he says. "We had to reject — and it kills me — maybe a couple hundred, whereas before we tried to get them all in."

If you go

QFest begins tonight with co-openers "Judas Kiss" (7:15 p.m. at the Ritz East) and "Codependent Lesbian Space Alien Seeks Same" (7:30 p.m., Ritz East); it runs through July 18. For tickets, screening info and related programming, visit www.qfest.com.

Three must-sees

We asked Murray for some suggestions to get started:

► "Circumstance": Set in Tehran, this story of two 16-year-old girls exploring their personal and political boundaries won the Sundance Audience Award for drama this year.

► "Mangus!": This dark comedy about a high-schooler looking to nab the starring role in "Jesus Christ Spectacular" comes from filmmaker Ash Christian ("Fat Girls").

► "The Perfect Family": When Eileen Cleary is nominated for Catholic Mother of the Year, she's not sure how to introduce her family — which includes a gay daughter — to the bishop in this comedy.

Gladis glad to be back

► Michael Gladis uses 'Leverage' to return to drama ► What the 'Mad Men' alum learned from Eastwood

After three seasons on the retro "Mad Men," Michael Gladis leaps back to the present day to join the cast of "Leverage." As a PR pro specializing in damage control, Gladis — who says he doesn't even have a publicist himself — shakes things up in this Sunday's episode, "The 15 Minutes Job."

You played a copywriter on 'Mad Men,' and now you're a publicist on 'Leverage.' Are drawn to characters with media careers? Not particularly, it's just the way it's panned out so far. I hope that I'll get to play some other types of characters on film that'll allow me to surprise myself and other people. That's the whole fun of acting. But for right now, I'll take any work I can get — so if it's a brainy literary character, I'll do that. I'm sure I'll play a moron at some point.

How was it working on the 'Leverage' set compared to that of 'Mad Men'?

Every set is different, just because every show is different. Being a guest star is always a very difficult thing because you're trying to serve a pre-existing vision. It's always a really great challenge but it's also really fun.

How did you get ready to step into that world?

Obviously, your work as an actor is to prepare your role. Then you just have to be very, very light on your feet and respond to the director and to your fellow actors. And be observant. And be respectful. [And don't] impose yourself or your ideas on their production.

MEREDITH ENGEL

Q&A

You're in the upcoming 'J. Edgar' movie. How was it working with Clint Eastwood?

Clint Eastwood has a reputation that he moves incredibly quickly. I was warned that I may only get one or two takes of my scene. And that's pretty much the way it happened; I think I got three takes. And I have an incredibly small role, it's a blink-and-you'll-miss-me role, but I did it because it's a dream — Clint Eastwood's one of my heroes.

5 Reasons to go to the movies this weekend

Must-see

1 "Horrible Bosses" No one likes working for a maneater, psychopath or total jerk, but only a few of us would actually embark on eliminating said bosses. Jason Sudeikis, Charlie Day and Jason Bateman star as three hard-working men who attempt to do just that.

2 "Zookeeper" Fans of Kevin James will likely enjoy his romp around a Boston zoo where talking animals give him dating advice in order to get back with his materialistic ex-girlfriend.

3 "Transformers: Dark of the Moon" Michael Bay has paid for the sins of the last "Transformers" film with this straightened out sequel, which features fight scenes where you can actually see what's going on.

4 "Larry Crowne" It's nice to see Tom Hanks do something funny after so many dour (and questionably successful) films. As the title character in "Crowne," he's a down-on-his-luck good guy trying to rebuild his life by going to community college.

5 "Monte Carlo" Leighton Meester, Katie Cassidy and Selena Gomez star in this tweenified story of three girls traveling in Paris who are whisked away to Monte Carlo when one of them is mistaken for a British heir.

Find a career to satisfy your sweet tooth

► Thierry Muret, former chemist and current Master Chocolatier at Godiva, on his unusual career path
 ► 'It's all about knowing your consumers,' he tells us

As Godiva's Master Chocolatier, Thierry Muret has one of the sweetest jobs in the world. We chatted with him as he gave us a sneak peak of the Ultimate Dessert Truffles Collection, a new line in mouth-watering flavors like Creme Brulee, Chocolate Lava Cake and Tiramisu. So how can you get to develop chocolate for a living like he does? Here's his advice:

Get educated

The typical path involves culinary, pastry and confectionary training, plus an apprenticeship, Muret says; however, he took an entirely different route. "I started not in the food industry at all. I started as a chemist, and my sister said, 'Would you be interested to open a chocolate shop?' I said, 'Yes, www.metro.us

but I don't know absolutely anything about confections,' and she said, 'Well, learn.' I studied and then I came here in the States, opened my shop and then Godiva noticed me."

Be passionate

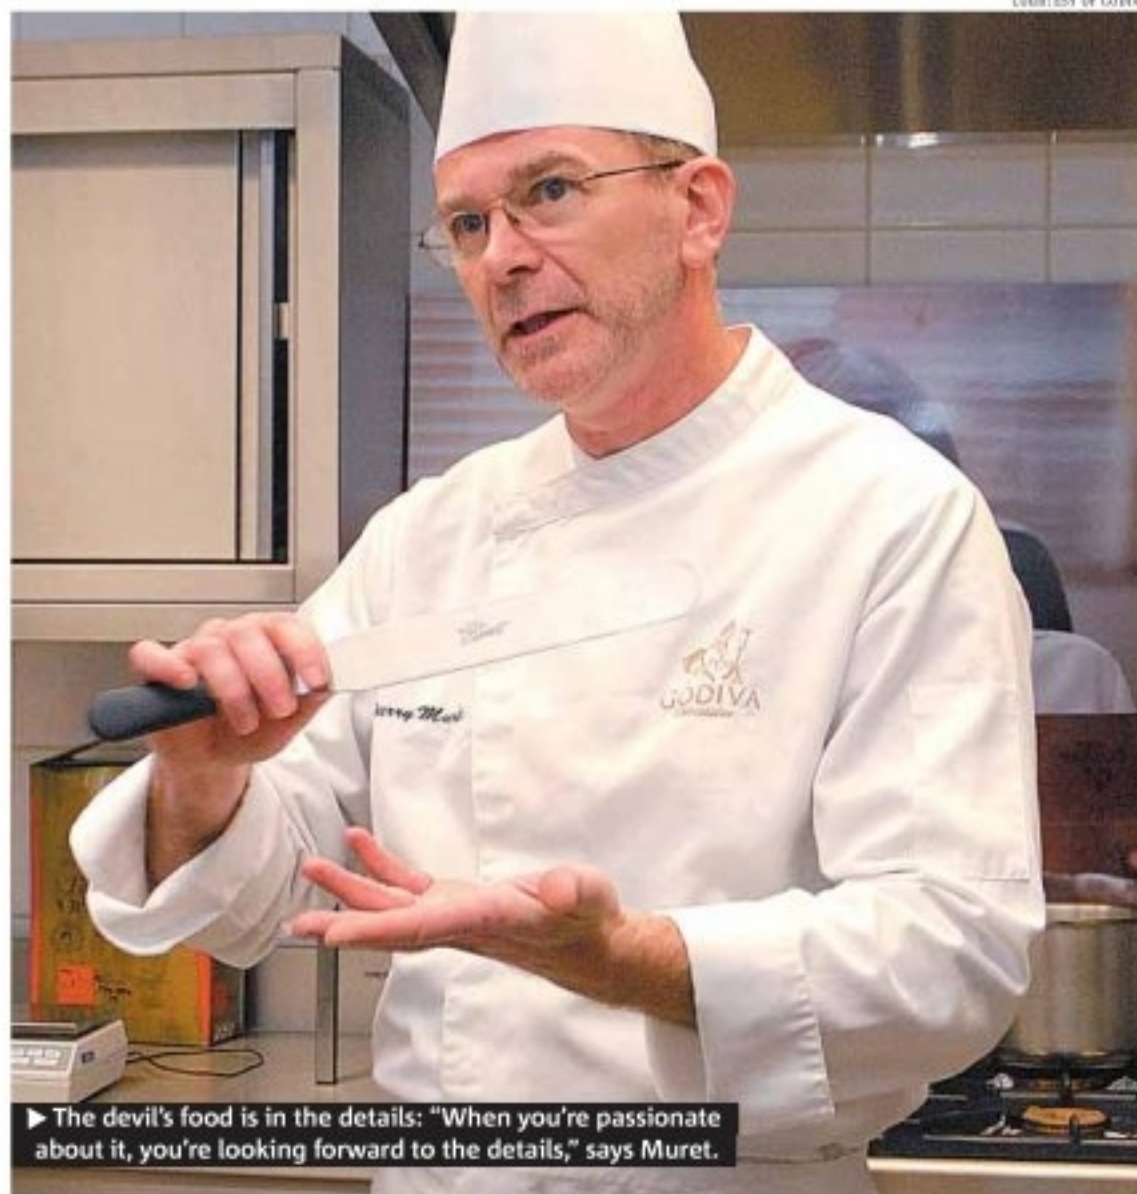

"If you're just doing it to be a star, it doesn't work — you need to really love the material," he says. "And coming from chemistry, I had that scientific background that allowed me to understand what was going on when I was working by hand, and I really fell in love with the complexity of chocolate-making. You need to fall in love with what you study. A lot of people think that making chocolate is very easy. It isn't. It's extremely complex. This is a job that requires you to be on-site for at least 10 hours a day."

Study your customers

"It's all about knowing your consumers [and] knowing their expectations. Right now we are working for the mid-autumn celebration, so a brand new 'mooncake' collection with five pieces will come out. I have a chef working on that here, but I contacted a chef in China to really see if we are into the expectation of the Chinese custom."

 meredith.engel@metro.us

► The devil's food is in the details: "When you're passionate about it, you're looking forward to the details," says Muret.

More tips

Pay attention to details:

"[At Godiva] all the shell molding is done by hand, all the dipping is done by hand, all the decoration is done by hand. Detail is essential — that's the difference between the mass market and the super premium. When you're passionate about it, you're looking forward to the details."

► Find a brand that fits your style: "All chefs have a style. It's very difficult to define, but you sense it right away. The hardest part for an executive [is] to keep all the styles in one company style, but with [a] little differentiation. To hire one chef, I interviewed 52; people are saying, 'Why are you eliminating this one?' Because he doesn't have that proper style."

► Never stop learning: "When you stop learning, you should get out of the profession," he says.

Play hard to get

Interviewing, unfortunately, is a lot like dating. "Don't pick up the phone on the first ring. For a scheduled phone interview, the second or third ring is safe. But if you miss the fourth ring, let it go to the answering machine. By the fourth, they're not happy with you. Give them 30 seconds, then call them back with a business explanation. Now, they've switched modes and they'll appreciate you calling them back."

► Want more expert advice? Bailo's new book, "The Essential Phone Interview Handbook," is available now.

3 Expert tips for acing a phone interview

- This seemingly simple chat is anything but
- Paul Bailo, CEO of Phone Interview Pro, on how to make it through the toughest type of interview

Take advantage of your home court

"A phone interview is like an open-book test — have everything in front of you," says Bailo of your resume and any written questions you have for the hiring manager. "The other thing we tell people is to go on LinkedIn and have a picture of the person interviewing you in front of you. It brings it down to a more personal, human level."

Put down your cell phone

It doesn't so much matter where you do the interview as what you do it on: namely, on a designated landline. "Some people feel comfortable on their office phone, some people feel more comfortable in the kitchen. But

Quoted

"People who are looking for a job need to have a Batphone. And that phone number is only given out to people who are looking to interview you." BAILO no cell phone," says Bailo. "People who are looking for a job need to have a Batphone. And that phone number is only given out to people who are looking to interview you."

Be yourself

"The No. 1 problem is: People aren't themselves on phone interviews. They try to be someone they're not," says Bailo.

This is especially harmful, because the person on the other end doesn't have any other way to relate to you. Accents, he notes, can work in your favor because they create a point of interest for the person on the other end of the line.

"With the phone interview, you lose 80 percent of your communication. All your social cues are gone. They only thing you have to work with is your voice. What you say, how you say it, all matter," Bailo says.

To earn better grades, try going to class

► College students who cut class not only have lower GPAs, they may be avoiding a bigger learning problem

Want to turn your GPA around? Try showing up. Classroom attendance is one of the easiest, most effective ways to get better grades, experts say. But that may mean facing a few of your shortcomings.

Last year, a SUNY Albany study published in the Review of Educational Research found that classroom attendance was the single best predictor of college grades. Attendance actually ranked higher than SAT scores, high school GPA and study habits as an indicator of success.

But why do so many students fail to show up on a regular basis? A study by the Higher Education Research Institute found that 33 percent of students reported skipping class during any given week.

Many educators sense that avoidance often contributes to the empty seats in their classrooms. Actually showing up may further expose a learning disability or a shortcoming in a particular area.

"Some people may have some remedial needs, and sometimes getting a diagnosis can lead them to do much better," says John Rooney, a La Salle University professor and author of "Preparing for College: Practical Advice for Students and Their Families." "With a little help, they're often on the right track. But at the college level you have to seek it out yourself."

The good news is that almost every U.S. campus now provides a number of resources for struggling students.

"I think that there is a reluctance to admit that they have an issue. But I think that's changing for the better now," says Kathy Anthony, director of counseling at Harcum College.

BRUCE WALSH
 bruce.walsh@metro.us

► Empty desks are bad for grades. "It can be hard to get students to engage with the services on campus. A lot of students don't use the support," admits Kathy Anthony.

Recipe

Buttermilk fried chicken

Anyone who resides south of the Mason-Dixon Line can tell you the hallmarks of Southern fried chicken. The skin needs to be well-seasoned and crispy, and the meat inside moist and tender. These buttermilk fried drumsticks meet the criteria, and would be perfect alongside macaroni salad at your next picnic.

Ingredients

- 1 quart (4 cups) buttermilk
- 2½ teaspoons kosher salt, plus more as needed
- ¼ teaspoon plus a pinch dried thyme
- 1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- ¾ teaspoon plus a pinch cayenne pepper

▶ You'll eat salad next week.

Game plan

If you cook the chicken just before leaving, transport it warm, uncovered, in a basket lined with paper towels and foil. If you make it a day ahead, let cool and refrigerate. Pack in a covered plastic container lined with parchment paper.

- 8 chicken drumsticks (about 2 pounds)
- 1 quart (4 cups) vegetable oil
- 1 cup all-purpose flour

Directions

- 1 Place the buttermilk in a resealable plastic bag, add 1 ½ teaspoons of the salt, ¼ teaspoon of the thyme, ½ teaspoon of the black pepper and ¼ teaspoon of the cayenne pepper and stir to combine.

- 2 Add the chicken to the bag and turn to coat in the buttermilk. Seal the bag and refrigerate 30 minutes or overnight. When you're ready to cook the chicken, let it sit at room temperature in the marinade for 30 minutes.

- 3 Pour the oil into a large, straight-sided frying pan or cast iron skillet (it should reach halfway up the side). Heat over medium-low heat until the oil reaches between 350°F and 360°F on a candy/fat thermometer, about 20 minutes. (If you don't have a thermometer, test it by sprinkling flour in the oil. If the oil's hot enough, it will sizzle and then quickly dissipate.)

- 4 Meanwhile, combine the flour, the remaining 1 teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon black pepper, pinch of cayenne and pinch of thyme in a shallow dish. Set a wire rack over a baking sheet and set aside.

- 5 When the oil is ready, remove four of the drumsticks from the buttermilk, letting the excess drip off. Coat the chicken in the flour mixture, shaking off the excess. Carefully lay the pieces in the oil and fry until cooked through and golden brown, flipping halfway through, about 20 minutes total. (An instant-read thermometer inserted into the thickest part of the drumstick should read 160°F to 165°F. If you don't have a thermometer, cut a small slit down to the bone; the juices should run clear and there should be no pink at the bone.) Place the drumsticks on the rack and season with salt. Repeat with the remaining chicken.

Do, don't let freedom ring

RE: "GAY RIGHTS AND WRONGS": For those who believe the government should stay out of the business of consenting adults entering into contracts, such as regulating gay marriage, remember that this could also apply to polygamy, polyandry and incestuous relations. For those who truly believe it's not the government's business to regulate such matters, this should not be a deterrent. SEAN CASSIDY, VIA E-MAIL

It's not over. The next agenda for the homosexual community is to have children taught that two men having sex with each other is as natural as a man and women having sex. CHRIS GRAHAM, VIA E-MAIL

Many people writing in about gay marriage seem to fail to realize that in our culture, "marriage" is a business arrangement. It is important regarding property ownership, inheritance, estate taxes and who may sit with a chronically ill person and make medical decisions. Not all couples marry for reproduction of the human race; some adopt, and/or use surrogates or other means. The government should stay out of anything that smacks of religious ideals.

ROBERT LAWRENCE, VIA E-MAIL

Gay "marriage" isn't about contracts or rights, or some nonexistent link to magnetic polarity; it's about secular morality being imposed by governmental fiat with the intended purpose of allowing 3 percent of the population to be able to tell the other 97 percent, "See, we're just like you" — giving rise to the appearance that the gay lifestyle is mainstream when actually nothing could be further from the truth. ROBERT SMITH, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. There's a possibility that you could be a bit disorganized when getting your operation in gear at first, but don't worry, you'll quickly get your act together and achieve results.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. There is a chance that your first ideas might not be your best ones, but if you are prepared to make adjustments, everything will work out great. Your second thoughts will be the clincher.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Take plenty of time to be a comparison shopper, because you could be somewhat of a compulsive buyer right now.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Those with whom you'll be involved either socially or business-wise will take their cues from you. If you're easygoing, they'll respond in kind. If you're abrasive, so will they be.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. A pal of yours who is much better at engineering a loan than paying one off could tap you for an advance. Don't be caught off guard and let him hit you up.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Put friendship above a personal desire that can be satisfied at another time, especially when dealing with a sensitive chum. Hurt feelings happen quicker than reconciliation.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Don't jump to conclusions and catalog information as fact until you've had time to check things out. Early news could be either far too limited or extremely distorted.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Only when you have the time to fully develop any opportunities that are presently at hand will you know for sure where they will take you. Don't prematurely assume the results.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. It won't be due to sheer luck that things will work out so well for you. Most good things that happen will be the result of you utilizing your smarts.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Although you might feel a bit uneasy about someone doing something for you, you'll stand back and let the person do it.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. If you could use some help, don't suffer in silence — let your needs be known. There are a number of people who'll step up to the plate and knock out a dinger for you.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Don't worry, you'll have the edge should you find yourself smack in the middle of a competitive involvement. Use all your energy concentrating on winning. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Numbers don't mean much without a ring

► Ibanez approaching 250 homers, 370 doubles ► Roller-coaster season for 16-year vet turning around? ► Worth it, if it ends in World Series title ► Ibanez is eight homers shy of 250 for his career.

Raul Ibanez has been in the major leagues for a long, long time — 16 years, to be exact.

From his rookie season with the Mariners in 1996 to the Royals in '01, back to the Mariners in '04 and then to the Phillies in '09, Ibanez has seen just about everything.

This season, he went through a maddening 0-for-35 slump before breaking out of it in a big way.

fielder has had a bit of a roller-coaster season at the plate, but he remains ultra-confident.

"I think one thing which has helped me with my longevity is the ability to stay on an even keel, don't get too high or too low," Ibanez said. "Stay the course and don't go up and down. This game is tough enough as it is. I just work and keep working when I'm up or down."

Ibanez recently knocked in his thousandth career run, which is quite an accomplishment (he's at 1,010 right now). He's also eight homers shy of 250, another solid milestone.

While many fans will say that Ibanez has never lived up to the $31.5 million contract he signed in 2008, his attitude would suggest otherwise. In a recent Sports Illustrated poll, Ibanez was voted the second-nicest player in the

Stat pack

Ibanez has accomplished a lot in 16 seasons, yet has only made one All-Star Game, in 2009. (Stats don't reflect last night's game.)

- Games played: 1,754
- At-bats: 6,152
- Batting average: .281
- Hits: 1,731
- Home runs: 242
- RBI: 1,008
- Doubles: 363
- Runs: 898

Victorino won't be heading to DL

One day after being diagnosed with a Grade 1 (mild) thumb sprain, Shane Victorino still isn't headed to the disabled list.

The Phillies plan to rest their center fielder, then re-evaluate him either today or Friday.

"I don't see him playing for a few days," manager Charlie Manuel. "I don't know."

Victorino is also leading the All-Star Game Final Vote contest. Balloting is open to fans up until 4 p.m. today. METRO

Back down

Polanco to see back specialist

Placido Polanco was benched for a second straight game as the All-Star battles a nagging back injury.

Polanco will see a back specialist when the Phillies return to Philadelphia today. He's batting just .216 since April, but doesn't plan on hitting the DL anytime soon. In fact, Polanco said he plans to play in next week's All-Star Game.

Howard under the radar

This is how Ryan Howard likes it: Quietly flying under the radar.

The Big Piece's overall stats aren't awe-inspiring, but he's still leading the NL in RBIs and ranks second in the majors. Howard entered last night's game batting .320 (8-for-25) since June 30, with nine RBI and two home runs. But he was left off the NL Home Run Derby roster.

71 RBI for Ryan Howard this season, which is tied for the NL lead with Milwaukee's Prince Fielder. He's batting .259 with 18 homers.

Prospect camp opens

Meanwhile, the Flyers opened their weeklong Prospect Camp yesterday at the Virtua Center Flyers Skate Zone in Voorhees, N.J.

Forty-one players will hit the ice, gym and classroom as they get their first taste of NHL life. Top picks Sean Couturier and Brayden Schenn — as well as Nick Cousins, Colin Suellentrop, Marcel Noebels, Petr Placek and Derek Mathers — highlight the class. Former Flyer Derian Hatcher is running this year's camp.

There is a public skating session today from 12:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. Fans will have the opportunity to skate with selected players. ● METRO

Could Flyers pull off Stamkos deal?

► Lightning star still hasn't signed with Tampa ► If Flyers are crafty, they might snag 21-year-old superstar ► Orange and Black open prospect camp

The Flyers have moved eight players from a team that entered last season as a Stanley Cup favorite, then spent much of the year holding the best record in hockey.

Flyers general manager Paul Holmgren was determined to put his stamp on the team. Instead of shaking a few branches, he took an axe and chopped the whole thing down.

Is he done? Maybe not. There are still rumors floating around that the Flyers are mulling a trade for restricted free agent Steven Stamkos. They chose not to send him an offer sheet last week, but the club could acquire the 21-year-old in a trade.

It seems unlikely that Tampa Bay would do that. But, if the two sides reach an impasse, it's possible.

Here are two scenarios that could put Stamkos in orange and black:

► PACKAGE NO. 1

FLYERS GET: Stamkos
LIGHTNING GET: Sergei Bobrovsky, Brayden Schenn, a first-round draft pick
WHY IT COULD WORK: If Tampa isn't going to sign

Stamkos anyway, they'd be getting a lot of young talent in return.

WHY IT WON'T WORK: Flyers would have to shed more salaries to free up money for Stamkos.

► PACKAGE NO. 2

FLYERS GET: Stamkos
LIGHTNING GET: Matt Carle, Scott Hartnell, Sergei Bobrovsky

WHY IT COULD WORK: Flyers would be saving $9.35 million in cap space.

WHY IT WON'T WORK: Lightning would insist on adding draft picks and/or Schenn to any deal.

Tough road ahead for US women in World Cup play

► Americans fall to Sweden, draw Brazil in quarters
► Wambach scores lone goal ► Solo surrenders two

Bring it on, Marta!

Wait, that's not a good thing, right?

The U.S. women needed just a tie yesterday to completely avoid a quarterfinals matchup with world powerhouse Brazil. Instead, the Americans fell 2-1 to Sweden and earned a date with Brazil Sunday in Dresden, Germany.

The loss marked the first for the U.S. women in group stage play at the World Cup. Meanwhile, Brazil rolled to a 3-0 victory over Equatorial Guinea.

"We really want to play in the final. But we have to play some great games, play some great teams," said U.S. coach Pia Sundhage. "I really want us to embrace this process. I think the team will get stronger. That's the plan."

Lisa Dahlkvist and Nilla Fischer scored for Sweden, with Abby Wambach notching the lone U.S. goal in the 67th minute. American keeper Hope Solo had her scoreless streak end at 796 minutes, when Dahlkvist scored on a penalty kick. It also ended

► Solo

796

Scoreless streak — in minutes — for U.S. keeper Hope Solo, before she gave up a penalty kick to Sweden's Lisa Dahlkvist in the 16th minute.

Solo's shutout streak at eight straight games.

Wambach scored her goal on a header, marking her first of this tournament and 10th overall in World Cup play.

The Americans are two-time Cup champions (1991, 1999) and entered as the No. 1-ranked squad. However, they lost in the semifinals of Cup qualifying and needed to beat Italy just to qualify for the tournament.

"This team's not going to give up," Solo said. "I believe in this team coming back." METRO

Jury selection begins in D.C. for Clemens' criminal trial

Blackmail is the key ingredient at the criminal trial of Roger Clemens.

The trial, which began yesterday with the questioning of potential jurors in Washington, D.C., could land a convicted Clemens up to 21 months in prison, with a maximum penalty of 30 years. The 48-year-old pitcher is charged with six felony counts, including perjury to a congressional committee investigating steroid use in baseball.

Clemens has accused former strength trainer

Brian McNamee of conspiring to blackmail him with tainted evidence. U.S. District Judge Reggie Walton stated that the government should be able to question Clemens' former teammates, like Andy Pettitte, Chuck Knoblauch and Mike Stanton.

Defense lawyer Rusty Hardin said his list of potential witnesses include the defendant's wife, Debra Clemens, and former teammates, like Hall of Famer Wade Boggs.

'Hammer' dies unexpectedly

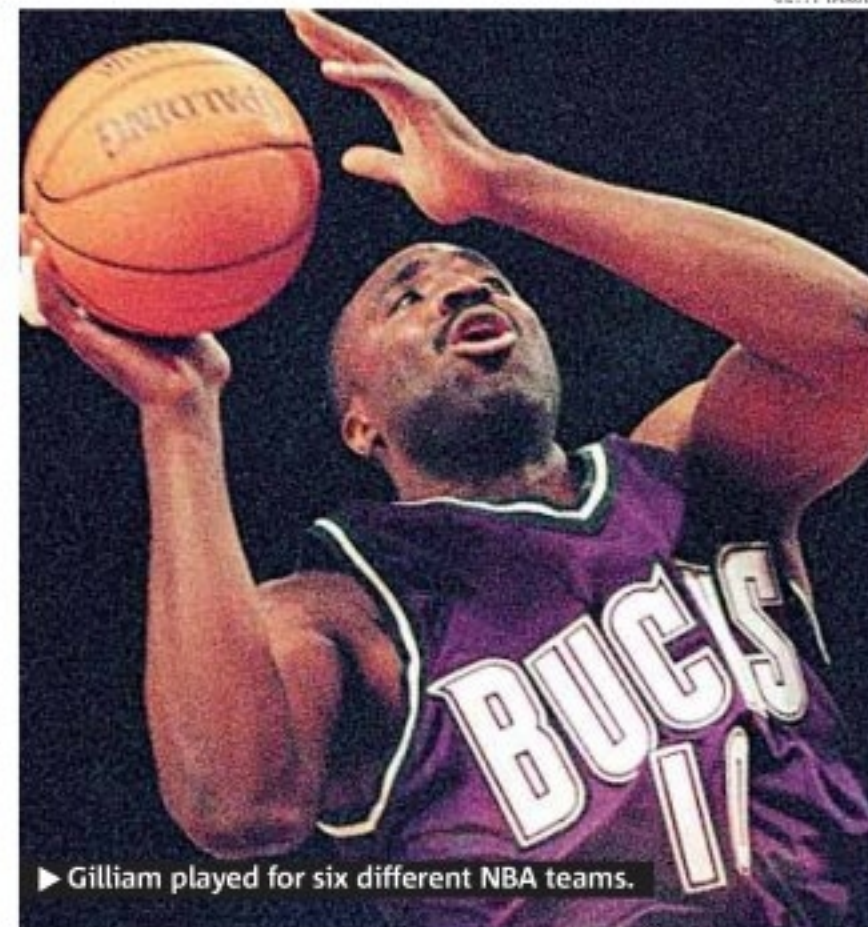

► Gilliam suffers heart attack while playing pickup basketball ► Thorn, Sixers send 'deepest condolences'

Armen Gilliam died Tuesday night, according to the Associated Press. The man nicknamed, "The Hammer," spent three seasons with the Sixers.

Gilliam suffered a heart attack while playing a pickup basketball game at an LA Fitness in suburban Pittsburgh. He was 47.

"We are deeply saddened to learn about the loss of Armen Gilliam," said Sixers president Rod Thorn in a statement. "He was a hard-working, physical player during his distinguished 13 years in the NBA and we are proud of the contributions he made to the Sixers from 1990 to 1993. On behalf of the entire Sixers organization, we send our deepest condolences to the Gilliam family during this very difficult time."

Gilliam and Dave Hoppen were traded from Charlotte to the Sixers in exchange for Mike Gminski in 1991. He averaged 14.7 points and 7.1 rebounds in a Sixers uni-

Tired of discolored toenails?

We want to see them.

Does part of your big toenail look yellow or brownish in color? It could be nail fungus. Not only is toenail fungus unsightly and embarrassing, but it can spread - to your other toes, from foot to hand, or even to family members.

Right now, doctors at Paddington Research in Philadelphia are taking part in a medical research study of an investigational medication for nail fungus that may help. This medication is clear and applied directly to the nail. If you join, you will receive the nail medication and all study-related care at no cost. You will also be compensated for your time.

Mortgage applications decrease

Mortgage applications decreased 5.2 percent nationwide for the week ending July 1, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association. Refinancing also fell 9.2 percent from the previous week.

The average contract interest rate for 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages increased to 4.69 percent from 4.46 percent. The average contract interest rate for 15-year, fixed-rate mortgages increased to 3.79 percent from 3.64.

"Refinance activity, already constrained by a smaller pool of eligible borrowers, declined in response to the higher rates," said Michael Fratantoni, MBA's vice president of research and economics.

Keeping cool in summer heat

► There are better ways to do it than sticking your head in the freezer ► We got top tips from an HGTV pro

It may feel nice to keep the air-conditioning on full blast, but when you do that, you're running your energy costs sky-high and doing Mother Nature no favors. We spoke with Taniya Nayak, host of HGTV's "House Hunters on Vacation," for better tips for beating the heat.

► Choose your fabrics wisely
Whether it's window treatments or pillows, cotton and linen are great, lightweight choices, she says.

► Replace your rugs
"If you have a heavy carpet, a really inexpensive solution is to pick up a natural-fiber jute rug. They're very nautical so it gives you that sense of coolness. You feel like you're on the beach."

► Paint zen colors

"The light, more powdery pastel colors are very cooling and soothing. You could even go tan as long as it's a grayish-taupy tan."

► Add white window shades
"They're white, so they'll reflect the light off. Cellular shades or honeycomb shades are awesome too because they almost trap the heat in the cellular compartments of the shade."

► Work with nature
"If you plant trees on the south or west sides of your house, it'll keep it cooler in the summer — but it'll actually keep it warmer in winter, because the sun sets and rises on the opposite side in the winter."

► Step away from the refrigerator: There are better ways to stay cool.

► Stay away during midday
Do dishes, wash and dry your clothes [and] cook in the morning or night. "You're just trying to avoid that midday heat — that's when it's the worst."

► Think long-term
"If you're going to live there for awhile, add insulation to your attic. It'll dramatically reduce the heat that's in your house."

► Don't underestimate a fan
"Every person always wants to take them out. I love to fall asleep under a fan in my bedroom. There are nice styles to them now."

Before you DIY, do your research

► Don't start swinging that hammer just yet ► Some planning — and maybe some hired help — can make all the difference with your next home project

Saving money by doing home repair projects yourself sounds pretty tempting. And it all looks so easy on TV! But beware: Household jobs have a way of taking on a life of their own. So whether the plan is to fix a leaky sink or remodel the whole kitchen, first check out these tips on how to DIY the right way.

Read up

Know all the steps before you start. That might mean reading articles, watching how-to videos, or even signing up for a class to learn the basics — or learn that you're getting in over your head. "Part of taking a class is possibly at the end saying, 'This isn't for me,'" says Stacey Hendricks, head of the education committee at the West Philly Tool Library, which lends tools so you don't have to break the bank buying new ones. Even if you decide not to DIY, Hendricks adds, once you've done the research you'll know the right questions to ask when choosing a contractor.

DAVID SACES

Start small

"People have to be realistic about the amount of time and work it's going to take," Hendricks cautions. He suggests testing your skills and speed with a small project. If the goal is to install hardwood floors, for example, try building a wooden shelf. "If you wind up with cut fingers and rickety shelves, you might want to hire someone for those floors."

Try teamwork

Some contractors are happy to guide homeowners through a project, for a fee, and pitch in only for the parts that call for a professional. Because, hey, some money is better than no money.

"I'll talk them through it on the phone, or go over and show them how to fix it themselves," says contractor Brian Hastings, who offers "DIY

Q&A

Still not sure if you should DIY?

Ask yourself these three questions, says Hendricks of the Tool Library:

1. Will I enjoy it or hate every second?

2. Do I have enough time?

3. Is it worth the money I'll spend on materials?

consultation services” and also posts home repair and remodeling tips on his website, Philly-DIY.com.

"It's the least amount of money," he says, "but instead of not getting the job at all because the customer can't afford to pay for the whole thing, it's better to work with the customer."
